As a guy who spends a good portion of his working day typing artwork details into spreadsheets and databases, can I ask a simple favor of my fellow artists: if you decide that a work is untitled please just leave it as that: "Untitled." Do NOT then qualify your lack of title in the parenthetical, ie. "Untitled (Frog Foot)" May I suggest just calling it "Frog Foot" ? If it's information which absolutely cannot be omitted, maybe that's it's title? Basically, whenever you do this I involuntarily sigh the most existential of sighs as I ponder how empty and meaningless my wage labor is. (David Adamo I'm looking at you.)
